Brooks is a widower and is employed at the World's Fair. After his return from Greece he wrote to Miss Viziopulo offering her the position of housekeeper. He has no family, but several World's Fair employes are bearding with him.

Miss Viziopulo's assatlant, who is a man about 45 years old, called at the house Wednesday about noon with a youth apparently about 18 years old. Leaving the youngster on the porch, he went inside and began making love to her. The housekeeper understands but little English, became frightened and started to run. The young, woman, when she recovered, ran to the house of Justice J. Will Barron on the corner of Lee and Slocum avenues, about a half block away. Mrs Barron cut the strings that bound her arms and mouth. She was then taken to Demetrius Jannopoulo, Greek Consul to St. Louis, to whom she related her story.

Yesterday afternoon the man returned to the Brooks home alone. Throwing his arms around Miss Viziopulo he kissed her and declared his love in ardent terms. Miss Viziopulo grabbed a paring knife and slashed him in the stomach. Her assallant bled profusely as he fell after receiving the wound.

Miss Viziopulo declares she never saw the man until last Wednesday.

Miss Ringen again charmed the audience with three songs by Elgar, descriptive of sea life. The first, "A Sabbath Morning at Sea." is from a poem by Mrs. Browning. Miss Ringen sang this number with much effect. The second number, "Where Corals Life," is a song of sentiment. A song of a different type and taxing qualities in the singer that had not been brought out in the other numbers, was entitled, "The Swimmer."

The passages in this song, dealing with storm, lightning and thunder, were realistically interpreted by the soloist. So dramatic was Miss Ringen's rendition of this song that the audience was electrified, and before the orchestra had finished the postlude of the accompaniment, the listeners broke out in enthusiastic applause.

AT STATE BUILDING

Dr. Clements, Republican Leader, Favors Roosevelt and Folk Ticket in Missouri.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN GOSSIP.

Conference of Francis, Mack and Mayor Wells Leads to Report That Mayor May Be Democratic Chairman.

Politicians from all parts of the State gathered at the Missouri building yester day to felicitate themselves upon the help they had given to the Exposition in the past and to mingle with the people. Demcrats predominated, though there was i goodly sprinkling of Republicans.

The Democratic National Convention, the make-up of the State ticket, the pos-sibility of the Republicans indorsing Folk for Governor, the Joplin convention to seect delegates at large to the Democratic National Convention and city politics fig-ured in the gossip of the day. It was an opportunity for an exchange of views that was not to be missed by the politicians.

When the former Governor and President of the Exposition, D. R. Francis, Mayor Rolla Wells and Democratic National Committeeman Norman E. Mack met below the auditorium during the speaking, and after a short talk went to the front of the building, where they entered President Francis's official wagon. some of the imaginative ones figured that "something was doing." Some even went so far as to woner whether Mayor Rolla Weils was being considered for tempo-rary chairman of the National Conven-

One of the three gentlemen said afterwards that the temporary chairmanship was not even discussed, though Parker wat.

"We met simply by accident, and, as it was raining, President Francis took Mr. Mack over to the New York building, where he was dropped," said this gentleman. "We gossiped some about the national situation, but nothing more."

Republican State Committeeman Doctor E. B. Clements of Macon attended the ceremonics and spent some time with Representative H. J. Simmons of Sheiby County. Doctor Clements was asked about the report that he whis in favor of indorsing Folk for Governor.

"Under certain conditions I certainly should be in favor of doing so. A Roosevelt and Folk ticket would sweep the State."

REPUBLICAN'S VIEWS. "What are the conditions?"

"It all depends upon the make-up of the "It all depends upon the make-up of the ticket that shall go with Mr. Folk," he re-replied. "I don't care to specify."

Doctor Clements is president of the Association of Young Republicans and usually speaks by the card. However, there were two Republicans present in the building who did not agree with him. They were State Senator McKinley of Union-ville and his gubernatorial manager, A. J. Martin. Senator McKinley is making an active and earnest campaign for the Republican nomination. selzed the youngster and fled with him to

State Senator E. B. Fleids of Browning was at the building with Mrs. Fields. They have attended three sessions of the Senate together. Senator Fields is a candidate for president of the Senate and blds fair to have no opposition. He is one of the Senators whose position against the lobby has always been known. During the last session he presided several times, and, it was said, made an excellent president.

In her answer to Bryan's bill, Mrs. Bryan asserts her husband is wrong in declaring himself for a year a clitzen of Cook County. She denies he has in good faith been a resident of the county long enough to establish rights of suit.

Since the allexed abduction of his son, I years old, Mrs. Bryan declares the boy has been surrounded with evil influences in Chicago, and, unless he is returned to her to receive a mother's care in the tender years of his life, he will be utterly ruined. "I told the girls some time ago that I would show them the Fair," the Senator said, "and I am keeping my promise."

Representative Richard Smith of Frank-lin County was with several of his neighbors. He probably will be renominated, and his normal Republican majority is about 800. He counts on being reelected. Doctor C. R. Woodson of St. Joseph was receiving congratulations on the fact that his brother, A. M. Woodson, had no opposition for the Supreme Court nomination, June Zi.
Joseph J. Hoeken, purchasing agent of the Farmington Asylum, and Representative Homa H. Weaver of Jefferson County were both at the building. Mr. Weaver was one of the leaders of the Folk fight in his county and succeeded in landing every vote in his precinct for the Circuit Attorneyship. Though he has no opposition for a renomination, he does not wish to go back unless conditions are such that private business can be planned to permit his absence from home. He was chairman of the Appropriations Committee at the last session.

State Senator John F. Morton dropped

ments, under the direction of Alfred Ernst, the well-known St. Louis conductor, charmed the audience. The themes of the symphony are largely negro melodies, and vary from the weird to the playful. The finale, which is full of excitement, was played with an enthusiasm and spirit that thrilled the listeners.

The first number on the programme was the "Louisiana March," the official march of the Exposition. Woven into the main themes are national airs and "Old Hundred." Before this number was finished the audience realized that the orchestra had been skillfully trained and harmonized, as it played with the most delicate rhythm and expression.

Aliss Jessie Ringen, the contraito soloist, sang an aria from Gluck's "Orpheus and Eurydice." So pleased was the audience with her rich and smooth tones that an encore was demanded, to which she finally responded, singing "O Fatima," from Weber's opera "Abu Hassan."

The audience tried to get an encore after the stringed instruments had played two numbers from Grieg, but Conductor Ernst did not respond. The first number, entitled "Heart Wounds," is full of pathos and was played with tender feeling, as was also the second number, "In Springtime."

Representative Lee T. Witty of Scotland County received congratulations upon a renomination. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Morrow of Jefferson City came down with Governor Dockery. J. B. Harrison of Rolla was also on the grounds. Judge Sam Davis of Saline County and Secretary of the State Committee Thomas F. Mitchim of Sedalia spent part of the day at the Missouri building.

Sedalla spent part of the day at the Missouri building.
Sheriff Joseph Dieckmann and State Coal Oil Inspector William J. Flynn were the principal local bollitclans who were on hand. Attorney W. H. Saunders, for the liverymen, secured a writ of prohibition against the board. Thursday Judge Valliant handed down an opinion in the Suprime Court which holds that the power to punish for contempt is a judicial one, and that the Board of Arbitration had not judicial powers.

In speaking of the decision last night, Attorney General Crow said:

"Our court in this case simply decided that under our State Constitution judicial power could only be conferred on and exercised by a judicial tribunal; that the State Board of Arbitration, as organized under the ect of the Legislature, is not a judicial tribunal, and therefore the General Assembly did not, by the act creating said board, confer upon it the judicial power to compel the attendance of witnesses before said board by attachment for failure to obey the process issued by the Arbitration Board.

"The effect on the board is simply that the board cannot now compel, by attachment, witnesses to appear before it and testify. The board had no power to enforce any award or decision it might have made before this opinion was rendered, and it has no such power."

When asked what effect this would have upon the powers of other bodies similarly created, and when asked if the Railroad Commission was a body with the same powers as had the Board of Arbitration, Mr. Crow stated that there was no occasion to discuss these matters.
